

TO TEST PAPER RAILS.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway officials said recently that it was probable that paper rails would soon be given a comparative trial on their road with iron and steel. It is said in favor of the new material that the cost per mile will be less by one-third than that of steel, which on many lines has almost displaced iron, and that it will last much longer, being almost indestructible. There is no expansion or contraction from heat or cold, and there are no loose or open joints. Being much lighter than steel the rails can be made much longer, the connections even, and a smooth road bed. It was also said that much heavier trains could be hauled over the track made of this class of material, the adhesion of the drivers of the engine to this being greater than to steel. Consequently an engine of the same weight and cylinder surface can do a far greater amount of work without a corresponding increase in the cost of fuel. The smoothness of the rail it is claimed, decreases materially the wear and tear of the rolling stock. The rails are made wholly and entirely of pressed pulp paper, and are so solid that the sharpest ax will not make the slightest impression upon them, and the action of the atmosphere has no effect whatever. Car wheels made of the same material have been given a thorough test by the Milwaukee Company, and have given the best of satisfaction, and it is thought that paper rails will prove equally as satisfactory.

At no time in life is a man so completely upbraided by threats as at the tender age of four, when his mother tells him she is going to cast aside his first trousers and put him back in frocks.

A fashion critic, arguing against excessive tightness in dress, says that "even beautiful arms, when very tightly inclosed, look not a little like sausages."
